

Actor Kevin Sorbo is on the short list of actors in Hollywood with a profound respect for unborn children killed in abortions. Sorbo has spoken out repeatedly against abortion and the Planned Parenthood abortion business and he did so again in the form of an editorial with his wife Sam recently.

The op-ed references a friend who received a phone call from an old girlfriend who asked him to accompany her to the abortion clinic but eventually changed her mind. Then, the Sorbos talk about abortion in no uncertain terms.

Secular humanists have made the word abortion sound like a woman's right, synonymous with health care, female empowerment, standing for women's issues, a choice, a solution; anything but the truth. The truth is, however, abortion is the termination of life. It is just a euphemism for murder because the only reason to get an abortion is to avoid the potential of birth – a human birth.

We dress it up with “my body, my choice,” but it is still a life inside of a woman's womb, and that life is still extinguished by the brutal procedure of abortion.

Sorbo talks about the inconsistency whereby eggs of endangered species are protected but not the offspring of human beings.

In some cases, disturbing the nest of a sea turtle and stealing its eggs is a crime punishable by years in prison and tremendous fines, but we have an entire industry in this nation devoted to the murder of unborn human beings. This is the new civil rights cause for our country. Barely a century after our grave and costly war against slavery, against depriving some human beings of their dignity and based solely on their skin color, we codified into law the right of the citizen to kill her progeny, based solely on its size and location, while unwittingly depriving herself of love that is pure and enduring. This is the definition of evil, pure and simple.

Previously, Sorbo, the former Hercules star, said Planned Parenthood's sale of aborted baby body parts “ought to make you sick” and he blasted Planned Parenthood via a series of tweets on Twitter. Sorbo, an American actor also known for playing Captain Dylan Hunt in Andromeda, has been outspokenly pro-life for some time.

“We pray that the thousands of babies slaughtered are never forgotten,” Sorbo says.
