

Iran regime even more oppressive since nuclear deal, dissidents say.

By Rowan Scarborough - The Washington Times - Tuesday, November 29, 2016

Iranian dissidents say Tehran has become even more oppressive against the populace since President Obama's negotiated nukes deal with the country, and are hopeful President-elect Donald Trump will show a stronger face to the Islamic republic.

Now free in the West, recently escaped political dissidents say Iran's regime has grown more oppressive since its nuclear deal with the U.S. and other world powers that had hoped the agreement would moderate the Islamic-ruled nation. The protesters also say the billions of dollars in cash the U.S. shipped to Iran, plus the West's release of frozen Iranian bank assets, already have been diverted to Iran's expansionist armies in Iraq, Syria and elsewhere. "Every deal, every negotiation with the regime, it means additional gallows in Iran . . .

Read more: <http://www.washingtontimes.com/news/2016/nov/29/iran-regime-even-more-oppressive-since-nuclear-dea/>