

The federal judge presiding over Planned Parenthood's revenge lawsuit against Sandra Merritt won't allow jurors to watch the videos exposing the abortion giant's gruesome and potentially illegal commerce in baby body parts.

And that has led to some tense moments at trial. Worse, I have shocking evidence showing his link to Planned Parenthood. I explain below. We're in day four of the trial, which may stretch into eight weeks. Because of its length, complexity and location in pricey San Francisco, this is the most expensive legal conflict in Liberty Counsel's history. You'll be shocked and outraged by what the judge won't let into evidence, as I share below. --Mat

Judge linked to Planned Parenthood Judge Orrick, by the way, is linked to Planned Parenthood. He helped launch, run and fund a Planned Parenthood facility that shares space with a family resource center he founded. And Orrick's wife attacked Sandra's colleague, David Daleiden, on Facebook, accusing him of "domestic terrorism" for exposing Planned Parenthood on video.

Despite this clear evidence of bias, which puts his impartiality very much in doubt, the judge rejected a motion asking him to recuse himself from the case. The law and the facts are on Sandra's side in this case—but we're up against abortion giant Planned Parenthood in San Francisco with a judge who appears to be biased and have his thumb on the scale.

Planned Parenthood, the nation's largest abortion chain, is out to crush Sandra's First Amendment rights and utterly bankrupt her. It has dozens of attorneys working around the clock in a furious attempt to punish Sandra and send a stern message to anyone else following in her footsteps.

This is the most expensive case in Liberty Counsel's history. The trial, with more than 60 witnesses, could go up to eight weeks. That means huge bills for hotel accommodations, airfare, food, court transcripts and more. The cost for court exhibits alone will soar into the tens of thousands. All told, this trial's expense will go well into the high six figures.

Please pray and stand with Sandra now with your gift. Humanly speaking, the odds are long . . . but with God all things are possible!
